

NOTES

1. This data is CDC's complete portfolio of energy investments as held at 31 December 2020. It does not represent all investment activity over a period. For example, it does not include exited investments.
2. The list of fossil fuel energy investments includes the direct energy value chain, i.e. all investees engaged in electricity production from fossil fuels or the exploration, production, processing, and/or trading of fossil fuels, as well as 'midstream' assets such as pipelines. It does not include industrial or manufacturing businesses that may use fossil fuels as a feedstock, and it does not include electrical or mechanical equipment manufacturers, contractors, or logistics companies that may serve the fossil fuel value chain among others. However, any investments which are outside the direct energy value chain but which exclusively support the energy value chain would still be captured in the 'carbon-related assets' figure disclosed in our Annual Accounts.
3. Our trade and supply chain finance business extends credit facilities to domestic banks in the markets where we invest to support trade and economic activity. Some of these facilities have exposure to carbon-related assets. Trading in fossil fuels will no longer be supported by any of our trade and supply chain finance facilities (new or existing) after mid-2022. An estimate of the total exposure related to trade in fossil fuels is included in the 'carbon-related assets' figure disclosed in our Annual Accounts.
4. The list of renewable energy investments includes some providers of renewable energy systems for commercial and industrial customers who may occasionally offer solar or wind systems with a diesel backup component for reliability. These investees are not included in our list of fossil fuel investments as the value attributable to the fossil fuel portion of their activity is de minimis.
5. In addition to the renewable energy investments shown below, we held other qualified non-energy climate finance investments (e.g. related to climate adaptation) totalling approximately $135m as of 31 December 2020.
6. 'Commitments' represents the amount that we have committed to invest in a particular company or project, these full amounts may not have been drawn down in full.
7. 'NAV' represents our valuation of the entire sub-category as at 31 December 2020.
8. In cases where an investment supports a mix of fossil fuel, renewable, and/or other uses, both commitments and NAV have been allocated to each energy type as fairly as possible (generally on the basis of the assets associated with each energy type as a share of total assets). Only the amount allocated to a given energy type is shown and included in the total NAV for that energy type.
9. Start date is the date on which a particular relationship began with the investee company, it does not signify the year in which the total commitment was made. Commitments may have been made over a number of years.
10. Further information about our investees and the nature of our investment can be found at <https://www.cdcgroup.com/en/our-impact/search-results/>
